Florian Cramer, tenor and conductor, started his musical education in the Stuttgart Boys Choir and the boys choir capella vocalis. He studied conducting and singing at the Music University of Freiburg. His repertoire ranges from Monteverdi up to the composers of the twentieth century, including the Schöne Müllerin of Schubert and Dichterliebe of Schumann. He has collaborated with well-known orchestras such as the Freiburg Baroque Orchestra in Europe, South America, and the Far East, and has conducted choirs such as the Camerata Vocale Freiburg and the Rheinische Kantorei. Since 2003, he conducts the Evangelische Studentenkantorei Freiburg, and since 2010, he is the musical director of the New Basle Chamber Choir. He teaches singing at the Music University of Freiburg and at courses such as the Staufener Musikwoche and in Schlüchtern.

American pianist and harpsichordist Stephanie Gurga completed studies in piano and organ at DePauw University, Indiana, and at the Ecole Normale de Musique, in Paris, France, before specialising in performance practice on historical keyboards. She went on to complete a "Kunsterliche Ausbildung" in harpsichord performance, as well as a master's degree in fortepiano performance, at the Musikhochschule Freiburg im Breisgau, Germany. Featured internationally as soloist, recitalist, accompanist, and chamber musician on harpsichord, fortepiano, and the modern piano, she is also on staff as accompanist at the Haute Ecole de Musique Vaud Valais Fribourg, in Lausanne and Sion, Switzerland, since 2010.
